

Dear Readers,

In a world that is all about change – whether it be politics or the climate – you can rely on one thing to always remain the same: Reumatologia journal is your place to find all the latest discussion about the problems of contemporary rheumatology.

Articles in the current issue of Reumatologia cover a wide range of subjects, such a kynurenine pathway in rheumatoid arthritis, biopsychosocial conditions of rheumatic patients, and a rare problem of H syndrome. Often you will find in the articles much more than the title alone suggests – as in the article on spinal cord non-traumatic injury, which draws our attention not only to the issue of such an injury itself, but also to the geoepidemiological conditions associated with it.

We hope that, despite the summer holidays coming to an inevitable conclusion, all the change you experience is only for the better. We will do our best to change for the better as well and progress constantly in bringing you the best articles from the world of rheumatology.
